AT THE STAKE.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Pawnee scouts, who were riding half a mile ahead of the column, gave the signal to halt, and pretty soon word came back that they had struck the fresh trail of a war party. Two or three of them disappeared among the foothills and were gone for an hour. When they returned, it was reported that the war party had gone into camp four miles away, and that the Indians had a white man with them as captive. From his dress they believed him to be a government scout, and from certain preparations being made they felt certain he was going to be put to the

There were a hundred troopers of us, while the Indians numbered only forty, but they had gone to camp at the tool of the base of a mountain spur from which they could note the approach of any one coming within a mile, except it be to the rear. If we moved as a body, they would mount and away before we were within rifle shot. It was finally decided that one of the Pawnees should conduct ten dismounted troopers over the mountain to approach the camp in the rear, while the main command was to move up as near as possible without discovery and be ready to dash at the the camp when the signal was given. It was 6 o'clock before we reached the crest of the mountain. It was 7 before we found the ravine which the scout said would lead us right into the Indian camp. While we had only about a mile to go, it had to be traveled in darkness over a route which would have been penlous by daylight, and it was close upon 9 oclock when we finally reached the fringe of bushes growing at the mouth of the ravine. Right before us and not a hundred feet away was the Indian camp. There were three small fires burning, with a smell of roasting meat in the air, and from the movements of the red skins we concluded they had just finished their supper, late as was the hour. It was some little time before we made out the white, man, as he was bound hand and foot and lying at full length on the ground. Fresh fuel was thrown on the fires, and as the camp was ighted up an Indian came forward to the bushes and hacked down a sapling with his tomahawk. While he cut and trimmed he was within twenty-five feet Assets............$5,879,208 00 of us. Had we not crept back when we saw him approaching he would have run right over the line. The stake was sharpened and driven into the earth at

A cart load of dry limbs was conveyed to the stake and piled up, and then the feet of the captive were loosened, and two Indians pulled him up. He was bareheaded, and the instant the flames showed us his face we recognized him as Charley

A dozen warriors ran in upon him with raised tomahawks, but the chief shouted to them to hold on and ordered the prisoner led to the stake. A rawhide lariat, which had been soaking in the spring, was then brought along, and after the scout had been stripped of his clothing he was made fast to the stake by the lariat being passed around his waist. He thus had the freedom of his arms and legs, and the fuel was so arranged that it did not come within three fect of the stake. While they were thus preparing him for torture we saw him glance about as if he might ently despair come to his heart, and he urned to the chief and said : "You are a squaw, and these people are children woom I could drive with a stick! There isn't a real warrior in Groceries & Provisions your tribe. I have made the whole

There was a rush for him, but the chief drove the warriors back, and, standing with folded arms before the scout, he answered: "We know you. You are a brave man. You speak truly when you say you have the scalps of some of our warriors. But we shall see how it will be with you when we prick you with knives, when we shoot powder into FOUNDRY your flesh, when we thrust in these splinters and light them, when we cut off ears and nose and tongue! After that we will light the fire and sit down and listen to your cries!" "If you hear one yell from me you may tell every white man in this country that I was a baby!" shouted the scout.
